

SUD to Install New Technology for Improved Meter Reading

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

The Sewanee Utility District of Franklin and Marion Counties (SUD) plans to implement automatic meter reading (AMR) technology and, if funding can be found, a constructed wetlands. The SUD board of commissioners reviewed financial considerations related to the AMR system and the constructed wetlands at the Oct. 23 business meeting.

AMR technology uses a two-way radio frequency system to collect meter data. The meter reader can access meter data from the utility company vehicle, SUD manager Ben Beavers explained. Due to inaccurate meters or leaks, SUD receives no revenue for one-fourth of the water it produces. Advantages of AMR include more accurate meter data, aid in leak detection and time and labor savings for SUD employees, freeing them for other responsibilities. Also, since the meter reader can use a car rather than a truck with AMR, SUD's vehicle expenses will be reduced by $25,000. The AMR technology will cost approximately $350,000 ($200 per meter), to be spread over the next three years. The Tracy City water utility implemented AMR several years ago, and the system is paying for itself even faster than expected.

SUD will meet with officials from the Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation (TDEC) on Oct. 29 to discuss the constructed wetlands project. The University of the South and University of Georgia recently collaborated on a design study for a pilot constructed wetlands at SUD's wastewater treatment plant (WWTP).

The goal of the pilot wetlands would be to provide data supporting the improved water quality and cost-effectiveness of replacing wastewater spray fields (SUD's present wastewater treatment method) with a constructed wetlands system. Constructed wetlands are in use in Georgia, and the Tennessee Department of Environment and Transportation uses constructed wetlands to treat wastewater at rest areas, but constructed wetlands have not been implemented in Tennessee on the scale SUD is proposing. If TDEC favors the project, SUD hopes the state will request EPA funding on SUD's behalf.

Beavers reviewed highlights of the proposed 2013 budget. The AMR technology will result in an increase in the capital improvements budget. The operating budget will remain the same as in 2012. Beavers anticipates a 3-4 percent cost-of-living raise for SUD employees, but other operating expenses will be lower than in the 2012 budget. Gas consumption, the cost of gasoline and healthcare costs were less than expected in 2012, Beavers said.

SUD's long-range plan calls for a 2-4 percent annual rate increase to allow for needed updates and repairs. However, SUD did not implement a rate increase in 2011 or 2012. A 2 percent rate increase would bring in $24,000 in additional revenue. The board approved an authorization request for $7,070 to repair the fence at the WWTP, required by TDEC following an inspection. The board also approved a new nondiscrimination policy with wording that more strictly complies with the Title VI Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Civil Rights Restoration Act of 1967.

The next meeting of the SUD board of commissioners is scheduled for November 27.

DuBose Lectures Begin at Seminary on Wednesday

The DuBose Lectures hosted by the School of Theology, Oct. 31-Nov. 2, offers the Sewanee community a variety of educational opportunities. In addition to three lectures by the Rev. Thomas G. Long, and the installation of Neil Alexander as dean (see page 4), this year's schedule includes several ways to engage with and learn more about Hispanic and Latino ministries and culture.

The Rev. Canon Anthony Guillén will lead a continuing education workshop on Hispanic/Latino ministries at 2 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 31, in Hamilton Hall's Hargrove Auditorium. Guillén is the Episcopal Church's missionary for Latino/Hispanic ministries. The topic of the workshop is "New Generation Latinos (NGL)." There are 30 million NGLs aged 14-34 who are bilingual/bicultural in the United States. This workshop is a must for any church community in middle Tennessee.

Also on Wednesday, Oct. 31, at 5:40 p.m., there will be a Holy Eucharist in Spanish at the Chapel of the Apostles. Guillén will be celebrant and preacher. The Eucharistic prayer will be the "Misa del Emigrante," originally written by General Seminary students and revised by seminarians at the School of Theology. The hymns will be typical of a Latino/Hispanic service and will be led by musician Julio Cuellar. Cuellar, originally from Bolivia, is a popular singer and songwriter.

On Thursday, Nov. 1, at 7:30 p.m., Cuellar will sing and play the guitar, as well as a variety of Andean musical instruments, at the Ayres Multi-Cultural Center. Coffee and pastries will be provided by Stirling's.

Everyone is welcome to attend any or all of these events. For details visit <http://theology.sewanee.edu>.

Early Voting Ends Thursday

Early voting in Tennessee ends on Thursday, Nov. 1.

Across the state, early voting has been very strong in its first six days. As of Oct. 25, Tennessee Secretary of State Tre Hargett reported that more than 700,000 ballots had already been cast.

The general election is Tuesday, Nov. 6. Precincts will be open 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. All voters must show a photo ID before they are allowed to vote. The new Tennessee law allows voters to cast provisional ballots if they arrive at the polls without photo ID, but they must then appear at their local election commission within two days after the election to have their votes counted.

In Franklin County, early voting will be on Saturday, Oct. 27, from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m., at the Franklin County Election Commission office; 829 Dinah Shore Blvd., Winchester. On Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 29-30, the office will be open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. On the final two days of early voting, Wednesday, Oct. 31 and Thursday, Nov. 1, the office will be open 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Anyone who requested and received an absentee ballot must return it by Nov. 6. For more information call the Franklin County Election Commission at 967-1893.

Early voting in Grundy County is at two locations: the Election Commission Office, located at the Courthouse in Altamont or at 10218 U.S. Highway 41 (formerly the site of Sharron's Beauty Shoppe between Monteagle and Tracy City).

Monteagle City voters who live in Marion or Franklin counties will vote in their regular polling locations; to vote in the Monteagle City elections, however, those voters will need to go to the Monteagle City Hall Annex.

Hargett reminds voters to participate in the new "Tennessee Honor Vote" program, which provides citizens with an opportunity to dedicate their votes in the upcoming election to the servicemen and servicewomen of their choice.

A new page has been developed on the Secretary of State's website where people may sign up and dedicate a personal message to one or more active or retired members of the armed forces. Go to < http://tnsos.net/Elections/honor_vote/form.php>.

Kirby Smith Orchard Being Restored

Saplings grafted from trees originally planted in the 19th century were planted on the Sewanee campus on Tuesday, Oct. 23.

Former Confederate General Edmund Kirby Smith came to teach at the University of the South in 1875. He was a professor of mathematics, a subject he had earlier taught at West Point; he also taught botany. While at Sewanee, Kirby Smith began an apple and pear orchard, of which only two living trees remain.

Over the past three years Martin Knoll, professor of forestry and geology at Sewanee, has worked with local horticulturist Alex Neubauer (center) of Hidden Hollow Nursery, to graft shoots from the remaining trees and produce saplings that are clones of the original. The Friends of Abbo's Alley planted several apple and pear saplings on the site of the old orchard in Abbo's Alley behind Johnson Hall. This is the hillside filled with daffodils each year during the early spring; the tree planting should have no effect on the flowers. The specific type of apple will remain unknown until the trees bear fruit.

Abbo's Alley is a ravine garden on the Sewanee campus. The name honors Abbott Cotton Martin, a professor of English at Sewanee for more than 40 years and a self-taught gardener who adopted the ravine, probably during the 1930s. The Friends of Abbo's Alley is a group of community volunteers who have provided equipment, supplies and labor to maintain the garden.

Horticulturist Alex Neubauer (center) plants a new sapling.

University Welcomes Alumni for Homecoming

This is Homecoming weekend at the University, and well over 1,200 Sewanee alumni are expected to be on the Mountain. This is a reunion year for alumni with class years ending in 2 and 7; those classes will have special events in addition to the all-alumni offerings. Reunion events also are planned for former members of the University Choir, Kappa Sigma and the rugby team.

The registration desk at the McGriff Alumni House will be open until 6 p.m., today (Friday), and 8 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday. The weekend will be filled with social, educational and recreational opportunities planned to appeal to all alumni.

At 4 p.m. today, there will be a ceremonial planting of an American Chestnut tree in the Environmental Quad in front of Snowden Hall. The Sewanee Tigers football team will take on Rhodes College at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday.

Academic offerings include the opportunity to sit in on college classes and to hear presentations on the new strategic plan by Provost John Swallow, C'89; the University farm by Gina Raicovich, farm manager; and "The Forest Unseen" by professor David Haskell.

Arts events include a reading and book signing of "Sewanee Poems" by Richard Tillinghast, C'62, and illustrated by Joseph Winkleman, C'64, and a book signing of "Hike 'Em All" by Mary Priestley, C'72. Richard Fleming will read from his book and speak about his photographs, followed by a reception. The exhibition "Richard Fleming: Walking to Guantánamo" is on display in the University Art Gallery.

Theatre Sewanee's production of the off-Broadway comedy "Picasso at the Lapin Agile" will be performed at the Tennessee Williams Center. The Rainbow Ribbon Society will host a reception for alumni, families and friends at 4:30 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 27, at the home of Marvin Goodstein, 147 Louisiana Circle, Sewanee.

Outdoor offerings include a hike of the new Caldwell Rim Trail overlooking Lost Cove, the annual fun run for alumni and friends, a "sneak peek" tour of the golf course renovation and numerous varsity athletic events.

Vice-Chancellor John McCardell and his wife, Bonnie, will welcome alumni at events throughout the weekend. The new Elliott Terrace in front of the McGriff Alumni House will be dedicated Saturday.

The full schedule of events can be found at <www.sewaneegateway.com/>.

CURB YOUR DOG, PLEASE

Dear Editor,

As I was walking my dog on the new sidewalk of Breakfield Road recently, my gait was broken every few steps by trying to avoid piles of you-know-what.

I was wondering if my neighbors and friends who also walk along that sidewalk could please remember to curb their dogs. I'd be grateful if they would just bring along a small plastic bag or even a shovel, if preferred.

I do not know the University's policy on curbing one's dog, however, I do know what I saw today was unsightly, unhealthy and downright rude.

"Hole-istic" Thinking About Stormwater Management

My memories of the seventh hole of Sewanee's golf course had, until this summer, been that of occasional hook shots into the woods above Shakerag Hollow, shanks into nearby Lake Torian and always fellowship with companion golfers equally as abysmal as me. But at the end of July I stood, boots caked in mud, with a crowd of stakeholders associated with the golf course renovations, assessing the aftermath that a handful of afternoon thunderstorms had wreaked upon the grassless landscape. Heavy rain on the hillside, left barren from construction, had caused a large amount of sediment to be washed into Shakerag Hollow. Aside from the immediate impact the sedimentation posed on the local ecology, Sewanee's Office of Environmental Stewardship and Sustainability (OESS) was concerned about future environmental problems that might arise from the golf course project.

Renovations to the course, designed by world-famous architect Gil Hanse, began in fall 2011. The project began as planned, but weather events in late July made clear the importance of adequate stormwater management during the design and construction process. And while people often assume stormwater issues deal mostly with water quality, the events in July made clear the importance of water quantity also.

The OESS, headed by Assistant Provost Jon Evans and Sustainability Director Marvin Pate, was called upon by the administration to do whatever it took to fix the problems of stormwater management at the golf course and to look at stormwater management issues at other future construction sites. This decree demonstrated an extraordinary commitment by the University in moving forward as a sustainable-minded institution.

As a result of this directive, OESS pulled together all of the groups involved in the construction (the University's physical plant and domain management offices, as well as the contractors and engineers) to develop the best approach to deal with the storm water. The first and most immediate solutions involved repairing and expanding damaged silt fences, as well as constructing new water retention basins. These retention basins—small, artificial ponds surrounded by vegetation that will permanently hold volumes of water—were not a part of the original plans. They will, however, provide an aesthetically appealing solution to stormwater management, capturing water from the largest watershed on the course, an area stretching from behind the Sewanee Inn to the tennis courts and clubhouse. This will slow infiltration into the Shakerag watershed, while also capturing and dissipating any pesticides and chemicals applied to the course that might cause harm in Shakerag Hollow. The second solution was to construct a large vegetated berm that runs parallel to the tennis courts in order to divert runoff into Lake Torian. This strategy will provide even more water for the lake, which is the source for all of the extensive irrigation of the greens and fairways. It is hoped that Lake Torian alone will provide enough water to get the course through even the worst of droughts.

The problems and the University's commitment to solutions to stormwater management issues on the golf course highlight the extreme diligence that must be carried out to minimize environmental impacts during construction. Sustainability and stewardship can only be achieved through a holistic approach when all stakeholders are brought together, and adequate and appropriate solutions can be discussed and vetted by all parties. The lessons that the University learned from mistakes on the golf course renovation have shaped strategies for the future. Just recently, a rain garden was built into the design of the newly-paved parking lot on Alabama Avenue. Stormwater management policies and practices are also being extensively outlined in the University's new sustainability master plan. With due diligence, it is the University's hope that future environmental problems from stormwater can be prevented before they ever happen.

And while the next time I stroll up to the seventh tee box I am sure my ball will disappear into some unplayable lie, I will have this great story to tack on to my experiences there—a shank in its own right at first, but one with an incredible second shot that left all of us with an assured putt for birdie.

Sewanee Chef Moser and IvyWild Featured in "Eat Up" Cookbook

Sewanee's IvyWild restaurant is pleased to announce that chef-owner Keri Moser is featured in the 2012 edition of "Eat Up," a cookbook published by Chattanooga's Gaining Ground. The group publishes "Eat Up" to promote local farmers, local foods and the chefs and restaurants that support them. Being asked to participate in the cookbook was a surprise honor for

Moser and evidence that the Sewanee community's dedication to supporting a local, sustainable food economy is gaining broader regional attention. This third installment of the "Eat Up" cookbook series is full of local chefs' and restaurants' favorite fall recipes featuring food raised or grown within 100 miles of Chattanooga. Moser's commitment to local foods has included efforts such as highlighting local farms and artisans on the IvyWild menu, developing a strictly-Tennessee cheese list and participating as a board member in the creation and implementation of the South Cumberland Food Hub.

Stop by IvyWild to pick up a free copy of "Eat Up" and try IvyWild's recipe for Pecan Vinaigrette, along with all the other delicious recipes provided by Chattanooga-area chefs.

Gaining Ground is part of a growing movement of local growers, sellers and others who are committed to increasing the production and consumption of local food in the Chattanooga region. Gaining Ground was launched in 2010 as an initiative of the Benwood Foundation. Jeff Pfitzer is the program director. For more information about Gaining Ground, go to <www.growchattanooga.org>.

ANGEL WITH AN ATTITUDE

by Virginia Craighill

Dear Angel,

The University spent a great deal of money on a state-of-the-art golf course and nice new sidewalks on Breakfield Road, so I am dismayed that people allow their dogs to poop on the course (a big problem for golfers) and on the sidewalks where people run, walk and stroll their children. We have lots of acreage for exercise and recreation, and I hope these other areas will be respected!

Singing the Blues about Wiping my Shoes

Dear Shoe Wiper:

When I lived in New York, I saw Chanel-clad women and Gucci-loafered men walking multiple massive mutts on the sidewalk or in Central Park. Whenever the dogs did their business, these sophisticated New Yorkers stopped and gracefully stooped, without a hint of shame, to pick up the pup's remains in a baggie and deposit them in an appropriate receptacle. Whereas Sewanee may be more au naturel, I hate to think New Yorkers are more civilized and respectful of their domain and their dogs than our citizens. My own dog always steps aside into the bushes or a grassy ditch; whether his good manners are a matter of nature, nurture or acute embarrassment, I cannot say. But I sense it is a point of honor for him to avoid the sidewalk and the golf course. Alas, with so many wild animals and stray dogs, it's hard to accuse particular pets or their owners without an eyewitness or C.S.I. Sewanee (Crime Spore Investigation). Dog owners, hear my plea: Train your dogs to defecate with dignity or get a cat.

Dear Angel,

While we "Sewanee Old-Timers" love to have students live here among us, some of them are extremely thoughtless. Do their parents let them throw empty beer cans and cigarette boxes in their front yard at home? Why do students think we won't mind if they litter the beautiful Sewanee campus and surrounding neighborhoods with that kind of trash? One can always tell when school is back in session because the amount of trash increases. Students should encourage each other to cease and desist from trashing Sewanee.

Tired of Picking Up Behind Students

Dear Tired:

This question seems similar to the dog question; just as dog owners need to discourage their dogs from viewing the University as one giant toilet, parents should teach their children that Sewanee is not their personal trash can. If dogs can be trained, surely students can be, too. In college, we learned all about B.F. Skinner's behaviorist theories in psychology. We spent hours in psych lab letting our rats get food pellets by pressing a bar, then shocking the hell out of them to see how long it took them to go back to the bar for food. Now I know Skinner is out of favor, and I'm not suggesting we shock students every time they throw a beer can on the ground or reward them with food pellets every time they clean up after themselves (unless the administration agrees to it), but perhaps some modification of this experiment is in order. What if it were a graduation requirement for every student to get up early at least one weekend a month and roam the campus picking up other people's trash instead of making PPS workers do it? It would save the University money and teach the students a basic lesson about the virtues of clean living.

Virginia Craighill, C'82, invites your questions and queries on matters of etiquette, style and ethics. Send them confidentially to <news@sewaneeessenger.com>.

Council Candidates Set, Update on Downtown SUD Board Seat A Open in 2013

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

At the Oct. 22 Sewanee Community Council meeting, election officer Michael Hurst announced the candidates for the open council seats which will be filled in the Nov. 6 election.

In District 1, with two vacancies, council representatives John Flynn and Michael Hurst are running for re-election. In District 2, with one vacancy, council representative Pam Byerly is running for re-election. In District 3, with two vacancies, council representative Pat Kelly is running for re-election; there are no candidates for the other open District 3 seat. In District 4, a contested race with one vacancy, both Adam Tucker and council representative Phil White have declared their candidacy.

Vice-Chancellor John McCardell circulated a sign-up sheet for council members willing to serve as poll workers on election day. Like the General Election also scheduled for Nov. 6, voting for the Community Council election will be at Sewanee Elementary School, but in a different room in the building.

University chief financial officer Jerry Forster updated the council on downtown Sewanee planning. Based on input gathered in town meetings last spring by planning and design consultants Project for Public Spaces (PPS), Forster said priority community-identified needs include a market and additional residential options, especially for seniors and those requiring assisted living. PPS's vision for the downtown area proposed a village-feel on both sides of Highway 41-A. With that in mind, Forster said the first step would be to make the highway more pedestrian with traffic calming measures. PPS suggested two options: a median with plantings and a roundabout, with traffic reduced to one lane in each direction for both scenarios.

Forster said the Tennessee Department of Transportation (TDOT) had approved both options. If the decision was made to move forward with either proposal, Forster predicted that acquiring grant funding and TDOT design approval would take a year, and the project would take several years to complete.

A visitor asked about the possibility of a stoplight on Highway 41-A. Forster said the University petitioned the state for a stoplight in 2003, and the request was denied.

Several council representatives expressed concerns related to the new Senior Citizen's Center proposed for downtown Sewanee. Council representative David Coe stressed the need for a seamless transition from the old facility to the new facility. Council representative Pat Kelly pointed out that the Senior Center cooked meals Monday through Friday, serving more than 7,000 meals a year (at the center and through home deliveries).

Council representative Flynn cautioned that the new Community Center proposed for downtown Sewanee would not be used if the many inexpensive programs now offered increased dramatically in cost because of high user fees at the new center.

Council representative Chet Seigmund called the council's attention to the golf course policy forbidding golfers to bring their own carts, saying the policy had drastically reduced use of the facility. Vice-Chancellor McCardell will ask the golf course manager to convene a community meeting to discuss the policy.

The next Community Council meeting is Dec. 3.

The Sewanee Utility District of Franklin and Marion Counties will elect a commissioner to Seat A, serving a four-year term to begin in January 2013. Prospective candidates must be SUD customers and must submit a brief biography and a nominating petition signed by 10 SUD customers by Friday, Dec. 7.

Petition forms will be available at the SUD office beginning on Monday, Oct. 29. All SUD customers are eligible to vote in the commissioner election. Voting will take place from Jan. 2 through Jan. 22 at the SUD office during regular business hours.

SUD commissioner Ken Smith, who currently holds Seat A, will run for re-election. Votes will be counted at the annual meeting on Jan. 22. SUD commissioner Randall Henley is serving as election officer.

Priestley to Sign "Hike 'Em All" at Taylor's

Mary Priestley, author of "Hike 'Em All: A guide to Hiking the Trails of South Cumberland State Park," will have a reading and book signing at Taylor's Mercantile at 2:30 p.m., Friday, Oct. 26.

Fall is a great time to get out in the woods, and this new guide provides information on hikes all across the South Cumberland. The guide features 14 hikes that cover all of the trails including Great Stone Door, Savage Gulf, Fiery Gizzard, Buggytop and many other beautiful sites.

South Cumberland State Park is one of the newer Tennessee State Parks. Almost all of the park lies atop the Cumberland Plateau and, unlike most state parks, it is made up of 10 different areas located in four different counties.

Priestley is also the author of "William's Wildflowers," a natural history book for children. Both books will be available for purchase and autographs at Taylor's on Friday.

Released last fall, "Hike 'Em All" is already in its second printing. The soft-cover book, made to fit in a backpack or pocket, was designed by Latham Davis.

A grant from the Tennessee Trails Association covered initial printing costs, and proceeds from the sale of the book support the work of the Friends of South Cumberland. Natural and cultural history stories are woven among the descriptions of the hikes. There are sections on physiography and vegetation, and Bran Potter wrote a section on the geology of the Fiery Gizzard.

The cover illustration is by Chattanooga artist Janis Wilkey. Pen-and-ink drawings throughout the book are by Jack Baggenstoss and Latham Davis.

"Maintain, Don't Gain" Wellness Campaign

According to a recent study from the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, the weight people gain in the winter months is often not lost, with the gradual increase in weight leading to eventual health problems. But folks who remain physically active throughout the winter are able to maintain their weight or even lose a bit.

Mass Appeal Fitness in Decherd has launched a campaign, "Maintain, Don't Gain," available to the community, not just current Mass Appeal members. People wishing to participate will weigh in at the beginning and end. A weekly newsletter will have information to keep participants motivated during the campaign. For more information go to <massappealfitness.com>.

AT THE MOVIES

The movie scheduled for Oct. 26–28, "Ted," was canceled.

Sewanee Union Theatre This Week

Friday–Sunday, Oct. 26–Oct. 28, 7:30 p.m.

Moonrise Kingdom

Rated PG-13 • 94 minutes • $3

Wes Anderson has made another delightful, quirky movie, "Moonrise Kingdom," set in the mid-1960s about two 12-year-olds who fall in love. There are adults in the film (Bill Murray, Edward Norton, Francis McDormand, Bruce Willis), but the focus is on the two very precious children. Each of them is trying to run away from something, perhaps growing up, and together they find adventure and wonder. With gorgeous cinematography, terrific music and period-perfect accents, "Moonrise Kingdom" is enchanting. Rated PG-13 for sexual content and smoking. —LW

Cinema Guild

The Rocky Horror Picture Show

Rated R • 100 minutes • Free

Here's your chance to see another cult classic on the big screen. "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" caused quite a stir when it was released in 1975 because of its gender-bending Transylvania transvestites and its unabashed sexuality. Today, it probably seems tame. The comedy-musical-horror film is about a young, innocent couple who get stranded and must seek help and shelter at a castle filled with unusual characters. Many spent Saturday nights in the 1980s at the midnight showing of "Rocky Horror," dressed as Janet (Susan Sarandon) or Brad (Barry Bostwick) or Dr. Frank N. Furter (Tim Curry), with rice, newspaper and plastic gloves singing "Let's do the Time Warp Again." Since this is showing on Halloween, go in costume and dance. Rated R for strong sexual content, including dialogue, violence and language. —LW

Sewanee Union Theatre Next Week

Thursday–Sunday, Nov. 1–Nov. 4, 7:30 p.m.

The Dark Knight Rises

Rated PG-13 • 165 minutes • $3

Batman is back, apparently for the last time, in this final segment of director Christopher Nolan's trilogy about Bruce Wayne (Christian Bale) and his alter ego. This time, Batman battles Bane (a virtually unidentifiable Tom Hardy), who is threatening to destroy Gotham. I saw this on opening day, hours after a disturbed young man killed 12 people at a Colorado showing of the film; this tragedy dampened my enthusiasm for Nolan's dark view of humanity. It boasts an all-star cast including Anne Hathaway, Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Marion Cotillard, Morgan Freeman, Gary Oldman and Michael Caine as Alfred, Bruce's loyal butler. I'm not sure how "Dark Knight Rises" evaded an R rating, as it contains extremely graphic and relentless violence. Rated PG-13 for intense sequences of violence and action, some sensuality and language. —LW

Hundred Oaks Castle Exhibit in Cowan

Local artist Ann Ford will exhibit a collection of paintings and photographs of Hundred Oaks Castle at Artisan Depot in Cowan through Nov. 10.

According to the artist, "My love of Hundred Oaks Castle began in the early 1960s when I first passed by. I was truly smitten. However, I had to wait a few years in order to see inside this amazing structure."

In the late 1960s, Ford was a professional photographer and was contacted by the author of a book, "American Castles," to see if she would do the needed photography.

"Trying not to sound too excited although I was jumping for joy, we agreed on a price and he agreed to give me credits in the book on all photos of mine that were included with the story," she said.

Hundred Oaks had been vacant for a few years and was in a state of neglect. Leon Hawksmith gave her keys and permission from the Catholic Church to take all the photos that she wanted. She spent almost a week snapping inside and out of this large manor.

"Not being a native of Franklin County, I was always overjoyed at this wonderful gift that Arthur Hadley Marks created and left behind after his early death," Ford said.

"This magnificent landmark gave Winchester its identity for many years. My objective was to render paintings in oils, pastel and acrylic from my own photos, showing the castle in better times and the sorrowful times as well."

Marks began with a two-story brick home and through his creativity and knowledge of castles abroad, transformed the former plantation house to this castle-like building. For as much as he accomplished, the entire structure was never finished, especially the upper levels.

The home was located on 600 acres. Marks named the home after the 100 oak trees that he counted on the property.

The Artisan Depot is located at 201 Cumberland St. East in Cowan.

SSMF At Your House?

The Sewanee Summer Music Festival invites ideas for community concerts for the 2013 season.

Throughout the 2012 season of the festival, students and faculty conducted seven concerts in venues such as Monteagle, Cowan, Beersheba Springs and Sewanee. These community events spread arts awareness and contribute toward the mission of the SSMF.

A formal process for receiving, reviewing and implementing community ideas for special concerts has been created for the 2013 season.

During October and November, the SSMF staff will be reviewing all ideas for the upcoming season. Events ranging from dinner gatherings to performances in unusual venues will be considered. The more creative and community-oriented the proposal, the more likely it is to be chosen. The SSMF staff wants community input on how it can be involved in a range of summer activities.

People who submit proposals will be contacted to discuss the possibility of participation. For events free to the community, SSMF asks that organizers provide funds for transportation of the students. For private events or gatherings, SSMF requests that the host donate a sum to benefit the student musicians and faculty.

To submit an idea, go to <www.sewaneefestival.org/support-ssmf/community-engagement>.

"Picasso at the Lapin Agile" at Williams Center

Theatre/Sewanee will present the long-running Off-Broadway comedy by Steve Martin, "Picasso at the Lapin Agile," at 7:30 p.m., today and Saturday, Oct. 26–27; at 2 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 28; and at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 1–3, in the Tennessee Williams Center.

The comedy imagines Albert Einstein and Pablo Picasso in a Parisian café in 1904, just before the renowned scientist transformed physics with his theory of relativity, and the celebrated painter set the art world afire with cubism.

Martin plays fast and loose with fact, fame and fortune as these two geniuses muse on the century's achievements and prospects, as well as other fanciful topics with infectious dizziness. Bystanders, including Picasso's agent, the bartender and his mistress, Picasso's date, an elderly "philosopher," and an idiot inventor introduce additional flourishes of humor.

"Picasso At The Lapin Agile" features Michael Caskey as Picasso and Dana Huffer as Einstein. Other cast members include Megan Quick, Cody Snead, Willem Peglau, Pagie Wilson, Oliver Crawford, Haley Poole, Hunter Woolwine, Elise Anderson, and Hyatt Pyle.

The play is directed by Peter Smith, assisted by Beckett Scott. Scenery is designed by Andy Philpo, lighting by Dan Backlund, costumes by Carter Stough, with stage management by Mary Morrison.

Admission is free, and reservations are encouraged at 598-3260 or <mcook@sewanee.edu>.

Piano and Clarinet Recital With Guest Artist Peter Cain

Clarinetist Peter Cain will present a guest recital with pianist and visiting assistant professor Bernadette Lo at 7 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 28, in St. Luke's Chapel. The program will feature works by Debussy, Francaix, Gershwin, Schumann and Smith. The event is free and open to the public.

Cain is a member of the Dayton Philharmonic Orchestra and a faculty member at Lee University in Cleveland, Tenn. He was the acting principal clarinet for the Knoxville Symphony Orchestra during the past season.

Cain received his degrees from Vanderbilt University, the University of Minnesota and the University of Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music (CCM), where he earned his doctor of musical arts degree. He appeared as a soloist with the CCM Chamber Players at the 2009 Midwest Clinic in Chicago and with the Knoxville Symphony Orchestra and performed with the Paloma Wind Quintet at the 2010 International Double Reed Society Conference.

TINTINABULATIONS

Students

One thing we teachers should always remember: If there were no students, there would be no teachers! For the first several years after I started playing the carillon in 2001, there were no carillon students. Some students appeared, but they disappeared fairly quickly. Several college students were promising, but they had too many other interests to continue. One adult commuted from Winchester, but had to stop playing because of back problems. However, now there are five students, and they can all play well.

During my teaching career, I discovered that the students could teach me a lot if I allowed them to. If I encouraged them to be responsible, they often blossomed. Such was the case for the last month while I was away. The carillon students carried on with the Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday regular concerts and performed at some special events. Several people have said, "I heard you playing last week." They were surprised when I told them I had been away.

One of the students said he would like to play at dusk on some Wednesday evenings. This suggestion has led to the regular scheduling of dusk performances on Wednesday or Thursday each week. The monthly schedule at <www.sewanee.edu/carillon> provides details.

The same student suggested that our group make some visits to nearby carillons, both to hear them and to play them. Several student carillon groups make regular trips: the Yale student carillonists visit installations in the Northeast and include a trip to Europe every couple of years. Possibilities for us would be Nashville (carillons at Belmont and Lipscomb universities), Ooltewah (St. Francis of Assisi Episcopal Church), Huntsville (First Baptist Church) and maybe on to Birmingham (Samford University and First Presbyterian Church).

The series about the bells in Sewanee will continue in the next column.

North Elementary Earns Grant

North Elementary in Grundy County was one of the 56 schools selected by the Tennessee Department of Education to receive a Focus School grant. This program will provide an estimated $19.2 million to schools across the state during the 2012–13 and 2013–14 school years.

The winning schools will be awarded between $100,000 and $300,000 each year. The funds will be used to create and sustain plans that close student achievement gaps among subgroups.

The grant program is designed to support Focus Schools—the 10 percent of schools in Tennessee with the largest achievement gaps between groups of students—in developing deliberate, data-driven strategies to ensure growth for student subgroups that have underperformed their peers.

Explore SAS Middle School at Open House

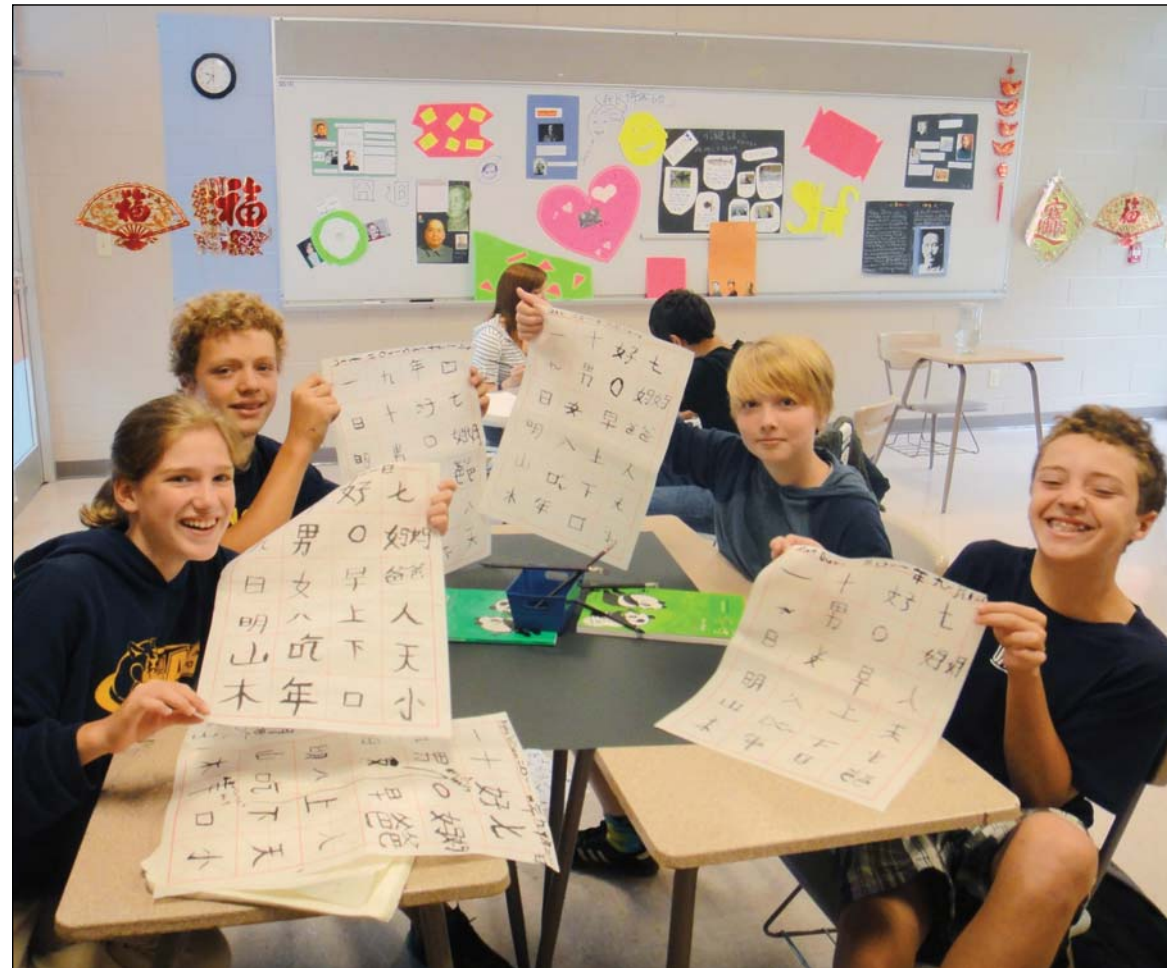

On Sunday, Oct. 28, St. Andrew's-Sewanee School (SAS) welcomes families with children in grades 4-7 to attend an admission open house. The event is an opportunity to learn about this unique school that enrolls students from 15 states, 15 countries and local neighborhoods. The open house begins at 2:30 p.m. in the school's James Agee Library.

Participants will tour the school's beautiful 550-acre campus, including the school's innovative LEED Gold-certified Wade Hall for the Sciences and beautiful McCrory Hall for the Performing Arts. Families will get a glimpse of classes taught by talented faculty members, meet current students and learn about the application process and opportunities for financial assistance.

In addition to its traditional core curriculum, SAS offers middle school students language instruction in Chinese, Latin or Spanish beginning in the sixth grade; biweekly classes in theatre, music, outdoor education and technology; and a one-to-one iPad program that teaches students safe and appropriate technology use. Middle school students participate in afternoon programs, including theater and interscholastic teams in 12 sports. The school also provides after-school supervision and can coordinate private music lessons and dance lessons on campus.

"Since 1868, St. Andrew's-Sewanee School and its parent schools have provided children with the education needed to live lives of accomplishment. The school's emphasis on instilling a passion for lifelong learning has served its graduates well, especially in an age when the set of skills needed to succeed changes so rapidly," according to Head of School John Thomas. "As an independent school, SAS teachers have also been able to keep the classroom focus on learning, not standardized testing. Students thrive in classrooms where classmates are motivated to succeed and hands-on learning and the exploration of their interests and passions take precedence over rote memorization."

Families who cannot make it on Oct. 28 or who are interested in admission for grades 9-12 are encouraged to call 598-5651 to schedule a personalized campus visit. For more information about the school, go to <www.sasweb.org>.

Humane Society Seeks Funds For New Animal Shelter

The Franklin County Humane Society (FCHS) has launched a capital fund campaign to build a new shelter for Animal Harbor. The goal is to raise $500,000, of which $190,000 has been donated or pledged. Property on AEDC Road in Decherd has been purchased for the new site.

With the success of this campaign, FCHS will be able to replace the dilapidated former hog-barn shelter with a modern facility.

"In our effort to keep our animals healthy and happy, this old building has become the enemy," said FCHS board president Pat Thompson. "It is difficult to stop the spread of contagious disease, and a great deal of our time and dollars are spent on overcoming the shortcomings of a building that was never designed to be a shelter, and which is now failing in major structural ways."

Shelter Manager Amber Kelley said that Animal Harbor would have to struggle through another winter.

"It's so painful for us to walk out to the kennel and see the little puppies shivering," Kelley said. "When it snows outside, it snows in the barn, too. The need for a new shelter is urgent."

To learn more or make a gift online, visit the FCHS website at <www.animalharbor.com> or contact FCHS's development officer, Gail Castle, at <animalharbor@outlook.com> or (931) 636-0388.

The "Dimes for Dogs and Cats" campaign by Joseph's Remodeling Solutions has begun. Beta Theta Pi will be taking the project to the University campus. Taylor's will remain the collection point throughout the campaign.

Taylor's will collect the bottles and deposit money into the Animal Harbor campaign account. Each bottle filled with dimes will be worth $92 and will go directly to the fund to build a new Animal Harbor shelter building.

Make plans to attend the annual Party For Paws event on Saturday, Nov. 17, at Cravens Hall. The evening will include local restaurant fare, drinks and a silent auction. Tickets are $30 and are on sale now. Call 598-0368 to order tickets.

St. Andrew's-Sewanee Mountain Lions Defeat Rival Webb

The SAS Mountain Lions won a hard-fought road victory over Webb, 34-27, on Oct. 19. The Mountain Lions are 8-2 for the regular season and conference co-champions.

After spotting Webb's Feet 14 quick points, SAS responded with 14 of their own with an Alex Tinsley 96-yard kickoff return and JR Clay's five-yard run. Kendall Kinslow passed to Josh Owens for the two-point conversion.

After a Webb score in the second quarter, the Mountain Lions once again answered with a 42-yard run by Kinslow. It appeared the half would close knotted at 20, but with five seconds remaining Kinslow busted another 21-yard scoring run. Clay added the two-point conversion for the 28-20 SAS lead.

Clay scored in the third quarter on a 17-yard run. The SAS defense held Webb to seven points in the fourth, capped by a stout defensive stand with three minutes to go deep in SAS terri-

tor. The Mountain Lions then ran out the clock to seal the victory.

Tinsley had two interceptions to go with his 96-yard kick off return. Michael Minton had eight tackles and a fumble recovery, while Kinslow, Owens and Levi Higgins each had five tackles. Kinslow ran for 123 yards on 16 carries, while Clay had 91 yards on 16 carries.

The Mountain Lions received the number one playoff seed for the tournament, which begins Oct. 27.

Sewanee, which is now 12-10 overall, finished the conference regular season with a 6-8 record.

After the Lady Tigers and Hendrix split the first four sets, Sewanee took its first lead in the fifth set at 4-3. Five points later, Caroline Montgomery gave the Lady Tigers an 8-4 advantage with a solo block and kill.

Sewanee pushed its lead to 12-9 when Jamie Sue Wilson had a kill and Lucy Riddle and Kayla Sewell combined for an assisted block.

During the next seven points, Hendrix eventually earned its first match point at 14-13. On the ensuing point, Wilson quickly evened the score at 14-14 with a kill.

After the Warriors set up their second match point with a kill, Riddle kept Sewanee alive with a kill of her own.

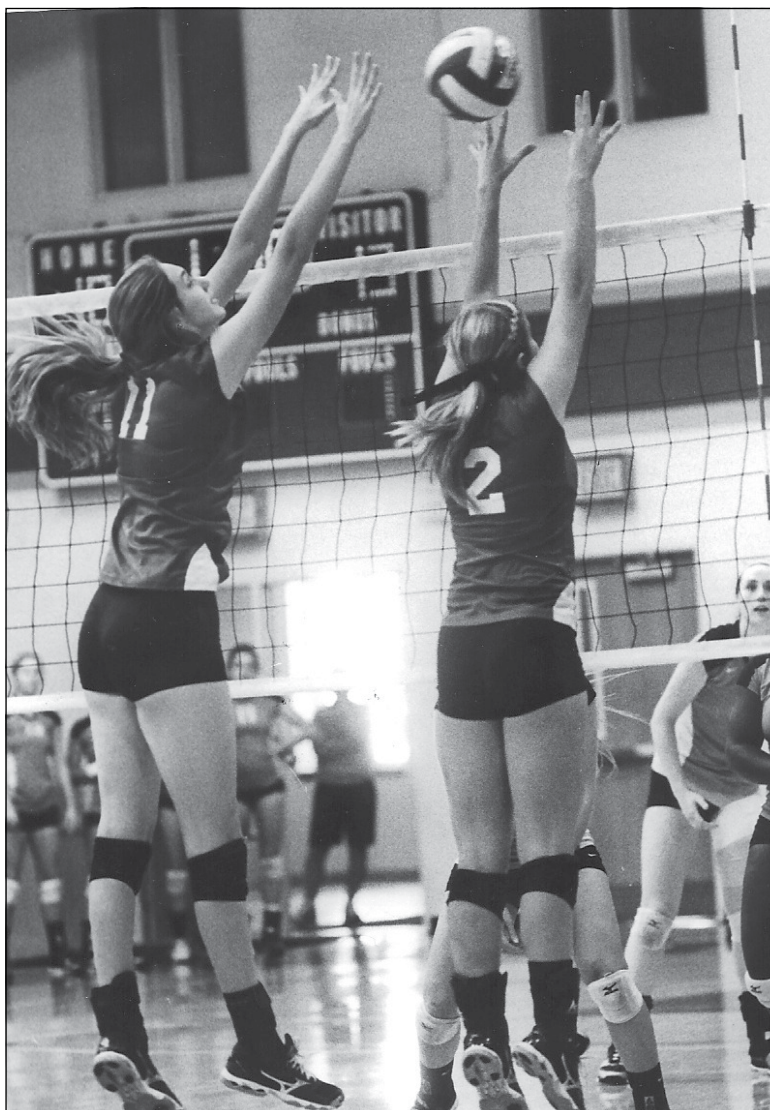

A point later, Hendrix could not end the match again, when Montgomery fired in a kill to tie the match at 16-16.

After a dig by Wilson gave Sewanee a 17-16 lead, the Lady Tigers quickly finished the match when Hendrix failed to return an attack.

Wilson led Sewanee with 11 kills and 17 digs.

The Lady Tigers also got great performances from Montgomery (nine kills) and Rebecca Hannigan (eight kills).

On defense, Sewell led all players with 22 digs, while Jamie Kosman had 21 stops. Hannigan, Sewell, Montgomery and Riddle combined for 11-and-a-half blocks.

Sewanee Runs Over Birmingham- Southern

Quarterback Curtis Johnson threw two touchdowns and ran for another, as Sewanee defeated Southern Athletic Association rival Birmingham-Southern, 31-19, on Oct. 20.

The victory improved the Tigers to 3-5 this season.

Down 7-0 late in the first quarter, Johnson capped off a seven-play, 72-yard drive with a 27-yard touchdown pass to slotback Jase Brooks.

After A.J. McMullen forced a BSC fumble, Sewanee scored its second touchdown when Sergio Acosta found the end zone from 17 yards out.

Later in the second quarter, the Tigers continued to roll when Johnson connected an eight-yard touchdown pass to Stephen Jackson with 57 seconds left before halftime.

Up 21-12 to start the third quarter, the Tiger defense continued to do their part. After receiving the kickoff, BSC quickly went three-and-out after Trevor McNeal sacked Jimmy Stainback for a nine-yard loss on third down.

On the ensuing drive, Sewanee stayed on the ground with eight rushing plays. With that, the Tigers were able to run a number of minutes off the clock. After Lee Schurlknight hauled in a 25-yard reception, Johnson finished the drive with a one-yard touchdown run.

In the fourth quarter, Sewanee pushed the lead to 31-12, thanks to a 32-yard field goal by Trey Knighton.

Sewanee racked up 399 total yards, which included a season-high 132 passing yards. Johnson finished four-of-five for 101 yards, while Barrett Goodson led the running backs with 81 yards on just eight carries. Behind Goodson, Acosta also ran strong with 70 yards on eight touches.

Defensively, Sewanee had four sacks, forced two fumbles and had one interception. J.D. Crabtree again led the Tigers with eight tackles and one tackle for a loss. Fellow defensive back Quentin Jones also played well with five tackles, one sack, one interception and two pass breakups.

The Sewanee crew men's 4 getting ready for the race.

Four Goals Net Victory for UofS Womens Soccer

A season-high four goals lifted the Sewanee women's soccer team to a 4-2 victory over Southern Athletic Association member Hendrix on Oct. 21.

With the victory, the Tigers improved 8-7 overall and are now 4-2 in SAA play.

Jamie Samociuk opened the scoring with a goal in the 11th minute. Later in the first half, senior Bess Goodman added to the lead when she fired in a goal in the 24th minute.

In the second half, Sewanee kept up its offense aggressiveness with a pair of goals by forward Bobbe Chaffin.

Despite having three less corner kicks, Sewanee finished with a game-high 18 shots, including a season-high 11 attempts on goal.

Chaffin, Goodman and Allie White led the attack with four shots. Caitlin Sneed and Samociuk also played well with two attempts

Field Hockey Outlasts Transylvania

The Sewanee field hockey team earned a 2-1 conference win over Transylvania on Oct. 20.

With the win, Sewanee improved to 5-7 overall.

Sewanee opened the scoring when Tilden Davis scored off an assist by Anne Booke.

After Sara Clark tied the score at 1-1, Booke fired in the game-winner from teammate Molly Kennedy in the 49th minute.

Overall, Sewanee led in shots (15-8) and penalty corners (8-6). Booke led all players with a game-high six shots. Davis and Maggie Boozer also finished with more than one attempt.

OVERTIME

by John Shackelford

When a baseball player jogs off the field after a victory, his manager usually greets him with a firm handshake with the right hand that also includes wrapping the left arm halfway around the player's shoulder for a couple of slaps on the back. Basketball players like to use the "chest bump." This evolved from the high-five and is correctly done by having two players jump into one another banging chests for a brief moment. I noticed this weekend that my beloved Green Bay Packers have a new "arm shake" for their touchdown celebrations. Both players begin flexing their bicep by bending at the elbow. This is followed by a violent banging and intersecting the flexed joints together. Testosterone is usually spewing out from every angle of this all-male encounter. (Seemingly a necessary ingredient when preparing to hit other 300-pound men in full pads while running at high speeds.)

The "guy-hug" off the field is also best performed with several back slaps, as if a fight referee is quickly indicating that it is time to break it up. Most guys can't give the impression that they actually like the person they are hugging, but they are ready to provide more than just a businessman's formal greeting. Are they anxious that the testosterone might get mixed together (which is probably against the law in at least 37 states)?

A couple of years ago, I had a player from Oklahoma City who had just finished his final college match. Henry Litchfield lost that day, but he gave me everything he had, just as he did every time he stepped on the court. As he walked away after that last match, I knew how disappointed he was to lose. But I was so proud of his four-year effort. It was a sweaty hug, as most of them are in these situations, but one I remember because I was sad to see my friend grow up and leave me for law school at Tulane. There were no quick back slaps on the court that day to rush his departure. Only sincere thanks for a job well done.

I saw Henry last weekend at the wedding of Laura Schieffler and Andrew Crone, two Sewanee alums, who were marrying in their hometown of Little Rock, Ark. Henry was there, along with many of Andrew's teammates from over the years, a collection of guys who had traveled from New York City, Jackson, Miss., Providence, R.I., Richmond, Va., Atlanta and Chicago to witness their friend make the big step. Seeing them all together wearing suits in church for the first time in far too long, we paused to greet one another with hugs. No sweat in those embraces this time around, but again no need to break it up all too soon. These guys still had too much in common despite the miles between them.

I grew up in the shadow of the home of author Thomas Wolfe in the mountains of North Carolina. The title of his novel, "You Can't Go Home Again," was mostly a billboard advertisement to me back then. It was a phrase that brought tourists to Asheville to see Wolfe's home, more than a warning about what to expect as we grow out of our past.

We could talk all day about what we find when we return home and how the neighborhood has evolved or when our friends have grown and changed. But I hope that when Sewanee alums return to the Mountain or meet in settings such as Andrew and Laura's wedding, the feeling they get upon seeing long, lost friends is one of home. Time disappears in those hugs that linger. It is Homecoming in Sewanee. No back slaps are needed to break things up.

On a more personal note: Coaches are lucky that we have time to build friendships with our athletes while they are with us, and then we are fortunate in getting to see them for many more years as they become brides, grooms, parents and successes. Sometimes, too, they face real-life challenges. Twenty-seven seasons have given me plenty of reasons to give a hug and plenty of opportunities for the return. Last week for the first time, I lost a former player and friend. Tanz Kane will be missed by many, and his former teammates and I hope that he has found some peace. It would have been nice to be able to give Tanz one more hug. One more reason to know that he had family here on this Mountain and that he was loved.

NATURENOTES

By Harry and Jean Yeatman

Scarlet Oak

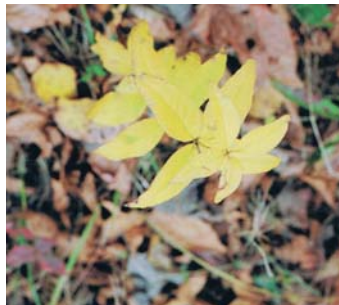

Autumn Color

Autumn color changes in leaves of trees, some shrubs and vines are characteristic of the deciduous woods of eastern North America, Harry Yeatman tells us. This is due to four major groups of leaf pigments, known as chlorophyll, carotenoids, anthocyanins and tannins, interacting with the environment.

The chlorophylls, essential in enabling the plant to capture the energy of sunlight in the process called photosynthesis, impart the green color to leaves. In the fall, when days are shorter and conditions are cool and dry, a corky layer of cells is stimulated to develop at the base of leaf stems. This layer cuts off water and minerals and leads to the buildup of sugars and the disintegration of chlorophyll in the leaves, which eventually fall. The disappearance of chlorophyll reveals the presence of the other pigments, just as in the ripening of fruit.

Carotenes are yellowish-orange to red in color. Anthocyanins range in color from scarlet to red to purple and blue, and are not present in most leaves in the summer, but develop in the upper leaf cells of certain plants in the fall, favored by the concentrations of sugars, cool air and soil temperatures, water deficiency, and low nitrogen levels. Leaf tannins produce the beautiful brownish bronze leaf color of the beech and some oaks. Combinations of these variable autumnal pigments produce the many shades of the fall foliage. Cool nights, with some rain to freshen the leaves, enhance the beauty of the foliage. Enjoy it, for it is simply a stage passed in leaf pigment degeneration before leaf fall.

Pine trees are dropping their old needles found in back of the young, terminal needles. This is a normal event in September and October and does not mean that the trees are diseased or dying.

Fog Safety Driving Tips

Autumn is here, and that means the arrival of the Mountain's infamous dense fog. And with fog comes greater concerns about traffic safety.

The Sewanee police department reminds folks of the following safety recommendations for driving in the fog.

"People need to really slow down, turn on their headlights and use extreme caution," said Marie Eldridge, acting police chief. Traffic accidents increase in the fog, whether it is because of deer in the roadways that are hard to see or vehicle collisions.

Tennessee state law requires that car headlights be turned on for rain, fog or precipitation. "When in doubt," she said, "turn those headlights on."

Other safety tips for driving in the fog include: When visibility is limited, turn off any music, roll down your car window and listen for traffic you cannot see.

Stay on the roadway by following the white stripe adjacent to the right shoulder of the road. This is easier to see than the middle stripes in dense fog, and oncoming headlights are not in your eyes.

Remember that other drivers have a limited sight distance, and fog can leave roadways slick. Use your turn signals, and when you use your brakes, don't stomp on them.

If an accident occurs, pull as far off the road as possible and turn on your flashing emergency lights. If there is no safe place to stand, stay inside your car.

Before getting in to drive, make sure your car is defrosted and the interior windows are defogged.

When in doubt, turn on your car lights, but make sure your high beams are not on. High beams direct light up into the fog, making it difficult for you to see. Low beams direct light down onto the road and help other drivers to see you.

HEARING HEALTH NEWS
by Debbie Gamache,
M.S. CCC-A Audiologist

TURN IT DOWN, KIDS!

Parents should carefully monitor how much noise to which their children are subjected. Everything from loud toys to loud music can have a harmful cumulative effect on hearing, much in the way that sun exposure harms the skin. How prevalent is the problem of noise-induced hearing loss? Consider the fact that this condition, which begins in childhood, is more common among young adults than obesity, asthma, visual and speech impairments, mental retardation, epilepsy and diabetes combined.

If you are concerned about your child's hearing, ask yourself the following questions: Does your child prefer television at louder levels than other family members? Does your child have inconsistent responses at school and home? Is your child experiencing academic difficulty? If you answered yes to two of the three questions, you may want to have your child's hearing evaluated. Please call us at THE HEARING CENTER LLC in Tullahoma for an appointment for a comprehensive hearing evaluation. We work with all ages—infants through adults. You can reach us at (931) 393-2051 or toll-free at (888) 303-2051 or visit our website at www.thehearingcenterllc.com.

BARDTOVERSE

by Scott and Phoebe Bates

The modern boys are bold and bad.
The modern girls are worse.
They run around about half clad
And smoke and drink and curse.
They treat life like a pantomime,
No serious things are heeded;
They have a whole lot better time
Than we did.

I rage and ramp and roar and stamp
About the modern youth,
And when they say, "What makes you damp?"
I say, "In simple truth
Such silly gayety's a crime!"
"In short," so one concluded,
"We have a whole lot better time
Than you did!"

But they'll grow old, and then, I pray
That they will sweat and suffer;
They'll find it harder to be gay
As the long road grows rougher;
Curse them! I can't be certain! I'm Afraid they'll keep their credo,
And have a whole lot better time
Than we do!
